The ability to receive Information from a designated station, well before arriving in the local radio stations area, is very helpfull, and could be considered very neccesary, to planing passage thru these areas. The advantage this service gives me in my car would, I believe, be greatly multiplied in a large truck. One way this would help me also would be to give these large trucks enough information to avoid being tied up where I have to drive in my car. Another help is that I don't have to drive and look at my radio to tune it to a station that I have to try to find, not being familiar with all the stations in all the areas.
